The information in this booklet applies to all people with Original Medicare.

If you have a Medicare Advantage Plan or other Medicare health plan, you have the same basic benefits, but the rules vary by plan. Your costs, rights, protections, and choices about where you can get your care may be different. For more information, read your plan materials or call your plan.

“Medicare Coverage of Ambulance Services” isn’t a legal document. Official Medicare Program legal guidance is contained in the relevant statutes, regulations, and rulings.

The information in this booklet describes the Medicare program at the time this booklet was printed. Changes may occur after printing. Visit Medicare.gov, or call 1-800-MEDICARE (1-800-633-4227) to get the most current information. TTY users can call 1-877-486-2048.

Medicare coverage of ambulance services

Medicare Part B (Medical Insurance) covers ambulance services to or from a hospital, critical access hospital (CAH), or a skilled nursing facility (SNF). Medicare covers and helps pay for ambulance services only when other transportation could endanger your health, like if you have a health condition that requires this type of transportation. In some cases, Medicare may also cover ambulance services if you have End-Stage Renal Disease (ESRD) (permanent kidney failure requiring dialysis or a kidney transplant), or you need dialysis and need ambulance transportation to or from a dialysis facility.

Medicare will only cover ambulance services to the nearest appropriate medical facility that's able to give you the care you need. If you choose to be transported to a facility farther away, Medicare will pay what it costs to take you to the closest facility that can give you the care you need. If no local facilities are able to give you the care you need, Medicare will pay for transportation to the nearest facility outside your local area that's able to give you necessary care.

Emergency ambulance transportation

You can get emergency ambulance transportation when you've had a sudden medical emergency and your health is in serious danger because you can't be safely transported by other means, like by car or taxi.

Medicare might cover emergency ambulance transportation when:

- You're in shock, unconscious, or bleeding heavily.
- You need skilled medical treatment during transportation.

Remember, these are only examples. Medicare coverage depends on the seriousness of your medical condition and if you could've been safely transported by other means.

Air transportation

Medicare may pay for emergency ambulance transportation in an airplane or helicopter if your health condition requires immediate and rapid ambulance transportation that ground transportation can't provide, and one of these applies:

- Your pickup location can't be easily reached by ground transportation.
- Long distances or other obstacles, like heavy traffic, could stop you from getting care quickly if you traveled by ground ambulance.

Non-emergency ambulance transportation

You may be able to get non-emergency ambulance transportation if you need it to treat or diagnose your health condition and the use of any other transportation method could endanger your health.

In some cases, Medicare may cover limited, medically necessary, non-emergency ambulance transportation if your doctor writes an order stating that ambulance transportation is necessary due to your medical condition. Even if a situation isn't an emergency, ambulance transportation may be medically necessary to get you to a hospital or other covered health facility.

Note: If you get scheduled, non-emergency ambulance transportation for 3 or more round trips in a 10-day period or at least once a week for 3 weeks or more from an ambulance company based in Arkansas, Colorado, Louisiana, Mississippi, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Texas, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Maryland, Delaware, the District of Columbia, North Carolina, Virginia, or West Virginia, you may be affected by a Medicare program. Under this program, your ambulance company may send a request for prior authorization to Medicare before your 4th round trip in a 30-day period, so you and the company will know earlier in the process if Medicare is likely to cover your services. Either you or your ambulance company may request prior authorization for these repeated, scheduled, non-emergency ambulance services. If your prior authorization request isn't approved and you continue getting these services, Medicare will deny the claim and the ambulance company may bill you for all charges. For more information, call 1-800-MEDICARE (1-800-633-4227). TTY users can call 1-877-486-2048.

“Advance Beneficiary Notice of Noncoverage” (ABN)

When you get ambulance services in a non-emergency situation, the ambulance company considers if Medicare may cover the transportation. If the transportation would usually be covered, but the ambulance company believes that Medicare may not pay for your particular ambulance service because it isn't medically reasonable and necessary, it must give you an “Advance Beneficiary Notice of Noncoverage” (ABN) to charge you for the service. You won't be asked to sign an ABN in an emergency. An ABN is notice that a doctor, supplier, or provider gives you before furnishing an item or service if they believe that Medicare may deny payment.

ABNs have options that allow you to choose if you want the service and explain your responsibility to pay for the service. If you choose the option showing that you want and will pay for the service, and you sign the ABN, you're responsible for paying if Medicare doesn't. The ambulance provider or supplier may ask you to pay at the time of service.

Example: Mr. Smith is a hospital inpatient and needs to travel to a different hospital for a procedure that can't be done in the hospital where he was admitted. Mr. Smith requires ground ambulance transportation because of his medical conditions, but he asks to be transported by air ambulance. Medicare will cover the cost of the ground ambulance transportation, but won't cover air ambulance transportation because this level of service isn't medically reasonable or necessary. The ambulance company must give Mr. Smith an ABN before transporting him by air ambulance, or the ambulance company will be responsible for any costs over the amount that Medicare would've paid for ground ambulance transportation.

If you're in a situation that requires an ambulance company to give you an ABN and you refuse to sign it, the ambulance company will decide whether to take you by ambulance. If the ambulance company decides to take you and Medicare doesn't pay, you may still be responsible for the cost of the trip, even though you refused to sign the ABN.

Voluntary ABN

If an ambulance company believes that Medicare won't cover an ambulance service because it doesn't meet Medicare's definition of a covered service, it may give you a voluntary ABN as a courtesy. In this situation, the ambulance company isn't required to give you an ABN to bill you for the service. If the ambulance company does give you a voluntary ABN, you aren't required to choose an option or sign it. In this situation, the ambulance company expects that Medicare won't pay for the service, and you'll be financially responsible.

Example: Mrs. Lee falls in her front yard and her neighbor calls an ambulance. She isn't in distress, but she can't stand up without having ankle pain. When the ambulance arrives, Mrs. Lee wants to go to the hospital, but she doesn't have a serious medical emergency and her health won't be in danger if she goes to the emergency room another way (like a car or taxi). Since Mrs. Lee could get to the hospital by another type of transportation without a serious risk to her health, Medicare won't cover the ambulance transportation. In this situation, the ambulance company isn't required to give Mrs. Lee any formal notice, but out of courtesy, they may give her an ABN, so that she knows she'll be billed for this service.

If Medicare doesn't pay for your ambulance trip and you believe it should've been covered, you may appeal. You must actually get the service and a claim for payment must be submitted to appeal Medicare's payment decision. See pages 11–12 for information.

Paying for ambulance services

What do I pay?

If Medicare covers your ambulance trip, you pay 20% of the Medicare-approved amount after you've met the yearly Part B deductible.

In most cases, the ambulance company can't charge you more than 20% of the Medicare-approved amount and any unmet Part B deductible. All ambulance companies must accept the Medicare-approved amount as payment in full. Note: If a critical access hospital (CAH) or an entity owned and operated by a CAH transports you, what you and Medicare pay may be different.

What does Medicare pay?

If Medicare covers your ambulance trip, Medicare will pay 80% of the Medicare-approved amount after you've met the yearly Part B deductible. Medicare's payment may be different if you're transported by a CAH or an entity that's owned and operated by a CAH.

How do I know if Medicare didn't pay for my ambulance service?

You'll get a "Medicare Summary Notice" (MSN) in the mail every 3 months that lists all the services billed to Medicare, including ambulance services. Or, visit Medicare.gov to log into (or create) your secure Medicare account to check your Medicare claims or view electronic MSNs. Your MSN will tell you why Medicare didn't pay for your ambulance trip.

Examples:

- If you chose to go to a facility farther than the closest one, your notice may say this: “Payment for transportation is allowed only to the closest facility that can provide the necessary care.”
- If you used an ambulance to move from one facility to another one closer to home, your notice may say this: “Transportation to a facility to be closer to a home or family is not covered.”

Remember, these are only examples of statements you may see on your Medicare Summary Notice (MSN). Statements vary depending on your situation. If you have questions about what Medicare paid, call the phone number on your MSN or 1-800-MEDICARE (1-800-633-4227). TTY users can call 1-877-486-2048.

Medicare rights & protections

What can I do if Medicare doesn't pay for an ambulance trip?

If Medicare doesn't pay for an ambulance trip that you think should be covered, you or someone you trust can review your Medicare Summary Notice (MSN) and any other paperwork related to your ambulance bill. You may find errors that can be fixed.

For example, while reviewing your MSN and other paperwork, you may find that Medicare denied your claim for one of these reasons:

1) The ambulance company didn't fully document why you needed ambulance transportation.

If this happens, you can contact the doctor who treated you or the discharge social worker to get more information about your need for ambulance transportation. You can send this information to the company that handles bills for Medicare or ask your doctor to send it. Look on your MSN for the company's address.

2) The ambulance company didn't file the proper paperwork.

If this happens, you can ask the ambulance company to refile your claim. If refiling your claim doesn't result in payment, you can file an appeal.

What if Medicare still won't pay?

If you have Medicare, you have certain guaranteed rights, including the right to appeal decisions about payment or coverage of services.

If Medicare doesn't cover your ambulance trip, and you think your trip should've been covered, you have the right to appeal. An appeal is an action you take if you disagree with a coverage or payment decision Medicare makes. To file an appeal, follow these steps:

1. Review your "Medicare Summary Notice" (MSN). It will tell you why your bill wasn't paid, how long you have to file an appeal, and what steps you need to take.
2. Carefully follow the instructions on the MSN, sign it, and send it to the address of the company on the first page of the MSN. You may also include a letter explaining why you believe the ambulance trip should've been covered.
3. Ask your doctor or health care provider for any information that may help your case and attach copies to your signed MSN.
4. Keep a copy of everything you send to Medicare as part of your appeal.

Or, you can use CMS Form 20027, and file it with the Medicare contractor at the address listed on the MSN. To view or print this form, visit CMS.gov/cmsforms/downloads/cms20027.pdf, or call 1-800-MEDICARE (1-800-633-4227) to find out if a copy can be mailed to you. TTY users can call 1-877-486-2048.
